

EVALUATION TERMS

Celluster Execution Authoring Preview

These terms define the permitted evaluation boundary for this Release-1 package.

By using the Celluster Execution Authoring Preview, you agree that the package is provided for evaluation only and that Celluster retains all ownership and intellectual-property rights in the Celluster technology and proprietary materials included with it.

1. Evaluation purpose

Celluster, Inc. provides this Release-1 package solely so you may inspect, run, and evaluate the Celluster Execution Authoring Preview and assess the Celluster execution-authoring model for your own internal evaluation purposes.

2. Limited permission to use

Subject to these terms, Celluster permits you to use the package for evaluation, including making copies reasonably necessary to install, open, execute, back up, or test the package within your evaluation environment. This permission is limited, non-exclusive, non-transferable, and revocable. It does not transfer ownership of any Celluster technology or intellectual property.

3. Restrictions

Except to the extent expressly permitted by these terms or applicable law, you may not sell, sublicense, distribute, publish, repackage, commercialize, or make the package available as your own product or service; use the package or Celluster proprietary materials to create or commercialize a competing or derivative implementation; remove or obscure proprietary, copyright, patent-status, or attribution notices; or use Celluster names, marks, or product identity in a manner that implies sponsorship, endorsement, ownership, or affiliation that Celluster has not authorized.

4. Reverse engineering and technical inspection

You may inspect the package to the extent reasonably necessary for ordinary evaluation and as otherwise permitted by applicable law. You may not use reverse engineering, decompilation, disassembly, extraction, or similar techniques for the purpose of appropriating, reproducing, or creating a substitute for Celluster's proprietary implementation, except to the extent a restriction on such activity is prohibited by applicable law.

5. Authored .cell contract

The supplied .cell contract is included so evaluators can understand and evaluate the authored execution model. You may inspect and make reasonable evaluation copies of that supplied contract. Its inclusion does not place the Celluster language, implementation, execution model, compiler logic, or associated proprietary technology into the public domain and does not grant commercial or derivative-development rights.

6. Ownership and intellectual property

Celluster and its licensors retain all right, title, and interest in the Celluster technology and proprietary materials, including all associated copyrights, trade secrets, know-how, patents, patent applications, trademarks, and other intellectual-property rights. Celluster has patent claims that have been allowed and may have additional patent rights or filings at various stages. No license to any patent or other intellectual-property right is granted except for the limited evaluation permission expressly stated in these terms.

7. Third-party materials

Third-party software or components included with or used by the package remain subject to their applicable license terms and notices. These Evaluation Terms do not restrict rights that a third-party license independently grants you, and they do not override third-party license obligations.

8. Feedback

You may choose to provide feedback about your evaluation experience. Nothing in these terms requires you to transfer inventions or other independently owned intellectual property merely because you provide feedback. Any separate rights concerning feedback must be established expressly.

9. No production commitment

This package is an Evaluation Preview. It may contain preview functionality and is provided to evaluate the Release-1 experience. Nothing in the package or these terms constitutes a commitment that a particular preview capability, platform, roadmap item, timing, or future release will be commercially offered.

10. No warranty

To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, the package is provided "as is" and "as available" for evaluation, without warranties of any kind, whether express, implied, statutory, or otherwise, including warranties of merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, non-infringement, availability, or error-free operation.

11. Limitation of liability

To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, Celluster will not be liable for indirect, incidental, special, consequential, exemplary, or punitive damages, or for loss of data, profits, revenue, business opportunity, or goodwill arising from or related to evaluation or use of the package. Any liability that cannot legally be excluded is limited to the minimum extent permitted by applicable law.

12. Termination

Your evaluation permission ends if you materially violate these terms or when Celluster withdraws the applicable evaluation permission. Upon termination, you must stop using and distributing any copies of the proprietary Celluster package that you are not otherwise legally entitled to retain.

13. Governing terms and updates

These Evaluation Terms and the accompanying NOTICE establish the package-level evaluation boundary. Any separate written agreement signed by Celluster and the evaluator controls to the extent it expressly conflicts with these terms.

Celluster may provide updated terms with later release artifacts; the terms accompanying a particular artifact govern that artifact unless otherwise agreed in writing.

PACKAGE NOTICE

See RELEASE/NOTICE.pdf for the concise ownership, patent-status, and proprietary-technology notice.